

International Blueberry Conference

News:

Over the last couple of years DLV Plant has grown significantly and developed many new activities. The merging of DLV Plant and GreenQ, combined with our increased activities and the changing market conditions was the reason for our new name: Delphy!

On Tuesday 8 March 2016, Delphy will be organizing the first 'International Blueberry Conference'.

The venue for this event will be the 'Park Hotel' in Horst in the Netherlands. This event will unite the many aspects of the European Blueberry industry and create a unique platform for growers and suppliers, advisors and traders. A fantastic occasion offering plenty of network opportunities and the chance to benefit from knowledge and experience from all over Europe.

A select group of international specialists will be giving lectures in which the many aspects of blueberry growing will be dealt with. The presentations will all be held in English. The main issues will also be translated in German.

Program Lectures (9.00 – 17.00)

- Annemiek C. Schilder, PhD; Small Fruit Pathologist; Associate Professor; Dept. Plant, Soil and Microbial Sciences; Centre for Integrated Plant Systems
- Pruning blueberry
Andrea Perger; Fall Creek
- Blueberry varieties development
Cort Brazelton; Fall Creek
- Plant model and plant system innovation
Leon Driessen; Driesvenplant BV
- Fertilization and (plant model on) substrates
Willem van Eldik; Delphy

Exhibition open from 08.30 until 18.00.

A blueberry/horticulture trade event will also be organised parallel to the presentations. The program will leave plenty of time for visitors to attend this event. The trade fair will also be open during the lectures, so that visitors can decide which event they want to attend.

In other words, this day is not to be missed by all forward thinking Blueberry growers.
